Domenico Puleo, a 20-year veteran of the state's largest workforce developer, foresees a future where the state's surging citizen participation in the job market continues to lead to a shortage of trained and educated workers. "We're going to see increases in the unemployment rate and longer unemployment periods," Puleo said. "There's going to be) more competition among businesses for skilled labor." Puleo's prediction is based on the recent shift in workforce development strategies under Gov. Phil Murphy's administration. The governor's announcement of a $1.3 billion Workforce Innovation and Opportunity Act (WIOA) in September 2017 signaled a shift in how
